Repeal the Gender Recognition Act 2004

We call upon the Government to repeal the Gender Recognition Act 2004. The Act makes it impossible in practice to keep biological men - who are statistically responsible for most violent crime - out of single sex spaces for women.

We call upon Government to repeal this law because we submit that:

- (a) it is causing avoidable harm to women and children, who reasonably fear male violence;
- (b) it is causing avoidable social unrest as women become aware that the GRA vitiates their right to single-sex spaces;
- (c) "gender" is a subjective notion, properly categorised under Freedom of Belief, not as an objective characteristic like sex or age.
